Mokena Petitions For New School

The movement for a new school building in Mokena is now heading toward a reality. On Tuesday Ona E. McGovney, Mrs. Albert Braun and Mrs. Harry Mall circulated petitions to get one fifth of the residents of school district 159 to sign same, petitioning for a new school building and the required signatures were secured in short order.

A special election will be called by the school board in the near future to submit the proposition to the vote of the people of the district.

At present the law on the bonding power of school districts allows 10 per cent and this law is to be substituted by another act on July first cutting down the bonding power to 5 per cent. In order to come in under the present law the board will hurry the proposition thru. The amount that can be raised under the bonding act at present will be about $22,000. It is estimated that the new school building, which is to be modern in every way, will cost approximately about $35,000.

On Thursday of this week, Ona E. McGovney, Elmer Cooper and Richard Hensel, comprising the Mokena school board went on a trip of inspection looking over various types of school buildings at Elgin, Aurora, West Chicago, Marengo and other towns, getting data as to cost, material used, etc.

Special Assessments Can Be A Burden

That special assessments can be made a burden to a community is being shown in a series of articles now appearing in the Chicago Daily News. Here is what The Daily News says about Midlothian:

"And then there's the village of Midlothian, which spreads southwest from 143rd street and Kedzie Ave. John Hamilton, better known as 'Buck', a former railroad fireman and now a real-estate operator, is the mayor. Marshall is the village attorney. He was reappointed Tuesday night, although Hamilton was not at the meeting.

"Although the village was incorporated only a little more than a year ago, March 1927, property owners there already face special assessments for the following contracts, let or pending: $98,000 for water, $63,000 for sidewalks and $137,500 additional water installations."

"When the board of trustees met to pass on the $137,500 item last December both Marshall and Hamilton were there. Villagers who attended were grieved down when they protested against the improvement.

"Finally, one protestor, exasperated at the steam-roller methods, demanded to know why the meeting was being held if property owners were to be given no voice."

"The meeting is being held," Hamilton explained naively, "because the law requires it."

"Pay $200 for $100 Work." Attorney Francis A. Harper, 111 West Washington street, who has handled legal matters for some of the towns in the south end of the county, asserted that many of the suburbs are being overloaded with assessments for public improvements that they have to pay close to $200 for $100 of construction. It works out this way:

"Bonds on an initial improvement say water mains, sell around $92 or $93 ($100 par.) When additional work is done, sewers, etc., and more bonds must be issued, the value of the bonds drops often to around 80 cents on the dollar. When a third project is pushed thru, the village securities go still lower as investors begin to question the village's ability to meet interest and principal."

"Contractors or others can hold the bonds, purchased or give as payment for work at way below par, until the bonds mature, when the villages must redeem at their full face value."

THE RETURN OF ANTHONY TRENT

By
WYNDHAM MARTYN

WNU Service

STORY FROM THE START

Anthony Trent returns to New York after nearly four years' absence. Once known as the master criminal, Trent is going straight. The pursuer accuses Trent of jumping overboard from the Poltania at Liverpool, but is disappointed when Trent shows no surprise. He learns his friend, Capt. Frank Sutton, is in Sing Sing. At New York Trent is startled to find somebody occupying his house. The stranger is Sutton Campbell, the brother of his best friend, who is serving ten years in prison. Trent is asked by Campbell Sutton to force Payson Grant to a written confession, having crookedly obtained all of Captain Sutton's possessions and later married his wife. Trent, after long hesitation, consents. Trent starts on a campaign to accomplish the downfall of Payson Grant. He learns from an old friend, Clarke, that Captain Sutton has escaped from Sing Sing.

"It must have happened while I was crossing," he said slowly. "I have seen no reference to it in any of the papers. How did he make his break?" "Brains, my boy," said Clarke. "I didn't think his conventional sort had it in him. He decided to go on a hunger strike. He asked permission to see the Head Nut of a society of bugs who live on one fruit meal a day. The Exalted Supreme Nut came to Sing Sing to explain his theories gladly. Sutton could not believe that a man would be strong on such a diet. He got the Chief Knight of Nutdom to strip and show that he had blood and sinew and muscle. Then your pal, Sutton, upper-cut him, got into his abandoned clothes, passed out in them and escaped."

"Sutton did that?" Trent laughed. It was the type of exploit he enjoyed. "Two weeks' start is pretty useful." "They'll get him," Clarke declared. "They'll get him because they'll know where to look for him. He's after Payson Grant, and Grant isn't sleeping well at night, believe me. Sutton's watching his opportunity."

"Know anything about his brother Campbell?"

"Not a thing. Do you?"

"Slightly. He's a college professor type, with a nasty little mincing way of talking, and a nose that stands away from flabby, yellow cheeks at an impossible angle." Trent reflected. "And yet there is something—I suppose it's a family trait—that reminds me of his brother. I'm going to see him tonight." Trent's face was grim. "I think I shall tell him I'm through."

Trent could not leave without a long talk with Mrs. Sauer, and he did not reach his apartment until dusk, but it had been a profitable afternoon.

The fragrance of his special brand of cigar greeted him. Campbell Sutton looked up from a book.

"Did you bring an evening paper?" he asked.

"No," said Trent. "I have been too much occupied to think of it. I went through that interesting pile of stone which the world calls Sing Sing."

Campbell Sutton put his book down. "After what I told you?"

"In spite of it. You will find that I do not take orders readily. Your brother was glad to see me. He sent his love to you. He apologized for your manners, and said you were one of those uncomfortable creatures who meant well."

Campbell Sutton considered the matter before answering. "Of course you didn't see my brother," he said. "He isn't there."

"He will be before long. According to the Evening World he has been arrested in Wilmington."

Although Trent's keen eyes were on the other's face there was no alarm or anxiety to be seen. Instead Campbell Sutton smiled.

"That I will never believe," he said. "My brother is hidden where none will dream of seeking him, and it is nowhere near any of the Wilmingtons."

"Why did you deceive me?"

"I felt I had to. Regard it as a precautionary measure. Mr. Trent, Captain Sutton depends wholly on your courage and energy. Do not let him suffer for excess of caution on his brother's part."

"Where is he?" Trent asked.

"For the moment I dare not tell you," Campbell Sutton meditated a little. "Perhaps when you have made your plans a meeting may be arranged. I will bring it about."

"If he isn't captured meanwhile," Trent answered.

"That wouldn't relieve you of your adventures."

"I wasn't thinking of that," Trent said. "The police will look for him at Deal Beach if Grant is still there. The vendetta idea, you understand?"

"They will look in vain," Campbell Sutton retorted. "That is the last place he would choose. My brother did not escape with the idea of murdering Payson Grant. Frank knows very well that by himself he has no chance to force Payson to confess the embezzlement charge was false. He knows that Payson will never admit to him that the revolver found on Frank was deliberately placed there by him or his hirelings."

"And he thinks I shall be able to discover proofs of an organized conspiracy?" Trent said, a little bitterness in his tone.

"Not exactly that. You are needed for subtler work than that. My brother thinks a man of your unusual abilities should be able to get Payson Grant into such a position that a full confession could be forced from him."

"It will be the hardest job I've ever tackled."

Campbell Sutton smiled a little as he glanced at Anthony Trent. Gone was the look of smoldering anger from that keen face. He was losing sight of the unwelcome task thrust upon him in the contemplation of its fascinating dangers. The old adventurous spirit was awakening. Anthony Trent versus Payson Grant et al. For the first time the incident held intriguing possibilities.

"I think I shall go down to Deal for a few days," he asserted. "I'm still a member of the golf club, so it will not be going as a stranger. I may run across Grant there, as you tell me he plays."

"It won't be easy to meet him," Campbell Sutton declared. "He is essentially a snob. To enter his house as a guest you would have either to be one of his old friends or one of his new acquaintances. You cannot be any of the old crowd. One of the reasons Mrs. Grant married Payson is that he is better adapted for social climbing than my brother. To get into her good graces you would need to be well introduced. This social struggle is a professional sport with all the little underhanded tricks that creep into professional games."

"I've seen it played more than you imagine," Trent returned, "and I know more prominent members of high society than your friend Payson

"If He Isn't Captured Meanwhile," Trent Answered.

Grant does. It happened that when I was in England I fell by accident into what was the 'top-hole' set. I met dukes and marquises, earls and cabinet ministers. I met Americans whose names had been household words to me, and found them all, marquises and millionaires, some of the nicest men I'd ever struck."

Anthony Trent mentioned the names of families which plainly impressed his listener.

"It seems incredible," Campbell Sutton murmured. "I'm sure, my brother had no idea you were a society man."

"I'm not," said Trent promptly. "I tell you it was all unpremeditated. I've never had social ambitions. When our ambassador told me there were prominent Americans gnashing their teeth because I—who wasn't even in the Social Register—was mixing with the titled throng and actually staying in an earl's castle, I was amused."

"I'd like to hear about it," said Campbell Sutton.

"That you most certainly will not do," Trent said decisively, his face hardening. Nothing could have induced him to tell this man, whose personality jarred upon him, of those entrancing days now so remote and alien. They were days when Anthony Trent felt himself safe and had known supreme happiness. There were memories which came thronging, fragrant, tender and too sacred to share. He felt, in that moment, he had said more than he need.

Set Little Brother in the Straight Path

A young Washingtonian gave an exemplification of a different sort of Christianity recently—one that was reminiscent of religion as it used to be applied. Perhaps the youth of nations was no different from the youth of a man. I believe there is a theory to that effect.

Anyway, this small boy was left in charge of his smaller brother while his parents went to the theater. When they came home they discovered a tear-stained Jimmie in bed and a sorrowful Bobby watching over him.

"Why, Bob," asked the mother, "what is the matter?"

"I hit Jimmie," replied Robert.

"You hit Jimmie!" cried the horrified mother.

"If what you claim is borne out by facts, it would make a meeting with Payson Grant less difficult than I imagined."

"I am making no claims," Trent said coldly.

"Mrs. Grant is always on the lookout for clever and entertaining men. I have never looked upon you as possessing social talents, but there's no reason why you should not."

"Thanks," Trent said acidly. Campbell Sutton was smiling. An idea had amused him.

"If you should be recognized by any of your former victims while a guest of the Grants, you would wound them incurably."

"You are certainly kind and thoughtful," Trent exclaimed.

The idea was disquieting. The adventure seemed to be growing in difficulty. It would be an ironic ending if, in the moment of victory, as yet highly problematic, this man denounced him. Trent did not think he had a normally minded man to deal with. Perhaps Campbell Sutton guessed of what he was thinking.

"I wish I dare tell you everything," said Sutton. He looked at the other man and seemed at though about to impart some hidden thing.

"I am not anxious to know more than I do," Trent said, rising to his feet.

"Some day you will understand," said Campbell Sutton. His aggressive manner was gone. "My experience with men has not allowed me to take anyone on trust."

Although Trent was up at half-past seven next morning, Campbell Sutton had finished his breakfast and was reading the papers his host had brought in the previous evening.

At half-past eight the buzzer in the passage rang three times.

"If you don't want to be seen," Trent said, coming into the front room, "you'd better go aft."

"Who is it?" the other demanded, betraying visible agitation.

"How do I know?" Trent snapped. "I don't claim second sight."

"You can't know till you've opened the door," Sutton whispered, "and then it may be too late."

"I don't open the door till I know," Trent told him.

Long ago he had made a little peephole through which a view of visitors could be obtained. He sighed with relief when he beheld only David More.

"It's a friend," he said, "but you'd better not be seen."

More handed his report to his employer, but would not sit down, as he was in a hurry.

Trent sat down in the chair so recently vacated by Campbell Sutton and read More's reports. His attempts to get information at Sutton's former office had resulted only in finding that all the old staff was dismissed. Those who remained were Grant men, convinced their employer was in the right.

Trent read the document through twice. Those who knew him well might have judged that what he had perused had awakened him to anger. His mouth was a thin line and his eyes had no longer any good humor about them.

He put the envelope in his pocket and then set about what seemed a curious and unnecessary rearrangement of the furniture, dragging back the comfortable chairs so that the center of the room was left bare but for a Royal Bohara rug of unusual size.

Campbell Sutton came in just as he had finished.

"What are you doing?" he asked in astonishment.

"I'm setting the stage," Trent explained.

"For what purpose?"

"I think you'll regard it as a tragedy."

"I don't know what you mean."

"You will," said Trent, coming closer. "It's simply this: I was willing for two reasons to run the risk attendant on helping your brother. One was that you threatened to denounce me to the police if I did not; the other was because I liked Sutton and owed him a great deal."

Those two reasons still exist," Sutton reminded him.

"But you don't," Trent had a dangerous, sneering laugh. "Put up your hands, man, for I'm going to hit you. Captain Sutton never had a brother or sister, and you're nothing but a d-d fake."

The Bible upon which Abraham Lincoln's hand rested when he took the oath of office as President has been given to the Library of Congress by Mrs. Robert Todd Lincoln, widow of the President's eldest son.

In addition, the Lincoln family Bible, containing records in Lincoln's handwriting and a gold medal presented to Lincoln's widow by the people of France immediately after her husband's assassination, are included in the gift.

A letter which accompanied the medal, bearing signatures of leading liberals of France, also will be placed on exhibition in the library. The large, black scrawl of Victor Hugo is the outstanding signature to the document which expressed the appreciation of the French citizenry for "Lincoln, honest man."

Fostering a proposition of "home-rule for Illinois cities" without interference from the state legislature, the Illinois Municipal league has evolved a set of principles for "free-city government," which are to be presented to municipal officials of Illinois for consideration. The league's proposition includes nine suggestions.

At the instigation of Prof. A. R. Hatton of Northwestern university, an expert on municipalities, the league sponsored a movement to obtain a consensus of opinion of public officials on self-government for Illinois cities, in contrast to the present system of ruling municipalities from the legislative chambers at Springfield.

Farmers of Illinois are feeding about 25 per cent less cattle than they were a year ago, the state and federal departments of agriculture have announced on the basis of a survey of conditions as of April 1.

The slump in feeding operations is attributed chiefly to the high price of feeders and to the poor quality or moderate to short supplies of corn. Recent price declines have also held down summer feeding.

Reports from Illinois feeders generally indicate a marked decrease from a year ago in the summer market movement of cattle.

Illinois would be the chief sufferer in the reallocation of radio stations with the ultimate elimination of 143 stations suggested in a statement prepared for submission to the federal radio commission by the National Association of Broadcasters, Federated Radio Trade association and the Radio Manufacturers' association.

Two procedures are explained in the proposal, one calling for the allotment of 110 stations to each of the five zones, and the other allowing each zone 140.

The 67 licenses in Illinois will be reduced to 31 in one proposal and in the other to 39.

Charles F. Rodenberg, statistician for the Illinois tax commission and resident of Springfield for the last ten years, died in the capital city a few days ago. He was sixty-eight years old. Mr. Rodenberg was a brother of Albert D. Rodenberg, assistant attorney general, and was born in Metropolis.

Figures compiled by the division of fire prevention and the state department of trade and commerce and made public by S. L. Legreid, state fire marshal, show that total damage from fires throughout the state last year was $21,961,452 resulting from 17,857 fires. Of these, 8,979 were outside of Chicago and caused damages amounting to $14,753,522 and 8,878 were in Chicago with damages of $7,207,930.

Cook county headed the entire state with 9,633 fires listed during the year.

A man who plans or draws sketches for his neighbor's proposed garage had better get an architect's certificate, if he does not want to violate the Illinois statutes.

Asked whether a building could be legally constructed without the services of an architect, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom declared that if a person drew plans for his own building, and did not make it a practice, it would not incur any violations or fines. But if a person should draw plans for a proposed building for another, he would violate the law.

One of the most interesting of the stories of Abraham Lincoln's connection with the railroads is concerned with an offer said to have been made to him by the New York Central railroad to become its general counsel. Some writers on Lincoln treat the story only as tradition, but, according to John W. Starr's "Lincoln and the Railroads," the story is as well authenticated as many events in the Emancipator's legal career.

Lincoln as a legislator, Mr. Starr points out, was instrumental in fostering the first railroads in Illinois and later he became counsel for the Illinois Central and also represented several other roads. While the records of the New York Central do not disclose that a formal offer was made, according to the New York Central Lines Magazine, there is evidence tending to show that at least a verbal offer might have been made.

Rock Island has voted more than three to one in favor of a $380,000 bond issue to build a transshipment river terminal. The terminal when completed is to be leased to the Inland Waterways corporation to serve the community.

The department of public welfare is the largest department in the executive branch of the state government. More money is appropriated for it for a greater variety of purposes than is appropriated to any other department of the executive branch or to any state office. The problems of the department of public welfare are of several classes: its care and treatment of human beings who are unable to care for themselves or whose segregation from free society is regarded as necessary; the financing of large institutions, keeping them in repair and adding to them to accommodate the growing numbers of inmates; the education of the blind, deaf and orphaned children and the occupational re-education of the mentally afflicted; research and study, the department contributing to the discovery of the causes of mental disease, delinquency and dependency.

A comprehensive magazine called Welfare is published and circulated free of charge. The publication is now in its second year.

A bridge in Rochester will be enlarged, providing more water space, by W. C. Johnson of Belleville, awarded a $3,405 contract by the state division of highways. Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer, has announced the awarding of 13 other contracts as follows:

Cornland has come back. Struck by a tornado a year ago, the little central Illinois village has emerged from the wreckage new and highly improved. Within the 12 months the village has effaced practically all of the marks left by the storm. Before the close of the summer the scars will have disappeared. The tornado which struck Cornland originated in southwestern central Illinois, and took toll of life or property, or both, at Carrollton, Loomi, Riverton, Buffalo Hart, Cornland, Chestnut, Lake Fork and Mt. Pulaski, and in intervening spots. A particularly pathetic tragedy in connection with the storm was the death of Annie Keller, teacher of the Centerville school, who was killed in protecting the pupils under her charge.

Express service by air will be started in Illinois on May 1 on the same planes that now carry mail between Chicago and St. Louis, the American Express company has announced. A contract between the express company and the Robertson Aircraft corporation, St. Louis, was signed a short time ago. Packages sent North will connect with the direct coast-to-coast service at Chicago, and South, will connect with lines to Dallas, Fort Worth and points in Oklahoma. The planes are being changed somewhat to meet the requirements of the new service, by equipping them with steel compartments in which money and valuables will be carried.

Determined to prevent a repetition in Illinois of the dance hall disaster at West Plains, Mo., in which forty were killed by an explosion in a garage under the dance hall, State Fire Marshal S. L. Legreid has appealed to mayors and fire chiefs throughout the state for co-operation in enforcing rules of his department. One of the rules forbids a public garage in any building used for a school or place of assembly or detention, hotel, apartment, tenement, or lodging house, or within fifty feet of any school, place of assembly or detention.

New Dresses for The School Girl

By MAE MARTIN

Thousands of mothers with daughters of high school or college age, have problems like this Little Rock, Arkansas, mother. She says: "I don't believe I could have put my daughter through the last two years of high school and college without the help of Diamond Dyes. Dresses long out of style and faded were made new with a package or so of Diamond Dyes and the addition of a few dozen buttons and a little braid. Sometimes two dresses were combined and brought up to date in lines that gave no hint of their past. People never knew they were redyed when I used Diamond Dyes. They never take the life out of cloth or make it limp. They always make things fresh, crisp and bright."

Diamond Dyes are true dyes, like those used when the cloth was made. Tinting with them is as easy as bluing, and dyeing only takes a little more time. Insist on Diamond Dyes and save disappointment. They never streak, spot or run.

My handsome new book, "Color Craft," will help you with your clothes and home furnishing problems. Sixty-four pages of dollar-saving suggestions, fully illustrated in colors. It's FREE. Simply write Mae Martin, Home Service Dept., Diamond Dyes, Burlington, Vermont.

Christmas Cards

The earliest example of the art of making Christmas cards is attributed to J. C. Horsley, R. A., who in 1846 made designs of this character. Subsequently the demand for these tokens became enormous, and at present Christmas cards are often of much artistic merit in both design and coloring.

Largest Rose Garden

Owned by King Boris

King Boris, the bachelor king of Bulgaria, who has just paid a private visit to King George at Balmora, has royal rights over the biggest rose garden in the world. It is about 40 miles long and 10 broad. The peasants of nearly 200 villages cultivate it. Their women folk get up before dawn to strip it. When a gentle breeze blows they say that its scent penetrates far beyond the Thracian plain in which it is situated.

It is this garden which yields the world-famous attar of roses, that luscious perfume which, in olden times, Persian shahs commanded should be used exclusively in their harems. It is said that this even today in India is offered to wedding guests on a little twisted cotton at the end of a short stick.

Attar of roses has long been the costliest perfume put on the market. During the war it ran up to $50 per ounce, and at present is round about $15.

The Bulgarian rose grower who does his own distilling does not get anything like such prices.

Race Mingling

In Hawaii, according to the Honolulu Nippu-Jiji, intermarriage between its many races is becoming more and more prevalent. American men in the islands showed the highest percentage of intermarriage in the year ending June 30, 1927, only 152 out of a total of 383 being with women of their own people. Hawaiian women also intermarry frequently, for out of 271 marriages recorded, 156 were with members of other races. The Chinese, in spite of a popular belief that they are inclined toward intermarriage, showed a total of but 42 such weddings out of 175 men who were married. Only 29 out of 798 Japanese men married women of another race, and intermarriages among Japanese women totaled 41 out of 810.

The average age attained by the twenty-seven Presidents of the United States who have died was sixty-eight years.

French Peasant Slow to Drop Old Beliefs

Eighteen centuries of Christianity have not sufficed to stamp out belief in werewolves, evil spirits and poltergeists in the rural districts of France.

On certain days of the year young girls in Brittany still go out to garland themselves with flowers and spend a few hours beneath the branches of sacred trees, a relic from Druidical times and a practice of which Joan of Arc was accused during her trial for heresy 500 years ago.

There is an interesting chapter in "Colas Breugnon," by Romain Rolland, on the way these remnants of paganism are viewed by the rural clergy. In Latin countries local saints have officially taken the place of the ancient deities and spirits, but the peasants still pay their tribute to the old pentates, much in the same spirit perhaps as the old lady who reverently dropped her head when the name of Satan was mentioned during divine service and who, when questioned by her pastor, replied: "A little politeness is never out of place; one never knows how it may serve one."

A court trial in a little Bretonese village, where a venerable peasant was accused of practicing medicine without a license, brought to light that the old man used a formula for the healing of the sick that scientists digging into Druidical lore have been unable to discover for centuries.

The healer said he had it from his father and that it had always been handed down in his family. That is to say, it had come from the days of Julius Caesar and the time when our Lord was on earth, without undergoing any sensible modifications. The peasant-healer should have been sent to jail under the law, of course, but there were such a number of his friends to testify that they had been cured that he was let off with a small fine.

Gas Can His Credentials

George Niederbauer, a young college student, arrived in Washington, after getting lifts from San Bernardino, Calif., with the aid of a gasoline can. Flaggging motorists with the can and having them pick him up on the assumption he was a fellow-driver in distress, the drivers would usually laugh when they found the gas container was only the wanderer's suitcase filled with clothing and continue to carry him on his way.

CLINICAL PLANT INADEQUATE

University Work at Chicago Held Back by Lack of Sufficient Facilities.

The College of Medicine of the University of Illinois, located in Chicago, has always been handicapped by the lack of proper clinical facilities. With privately endowed medical schools constantly curtailing the enrollment of their classes the state must sooner or later be concerned with an increase of medical educational facilities.

Not only is the hospital department inadequate in the matter of beds for taking care of the indigent unfortunates who through the clinic, but there is a constantly increasing number of defectives who become wards of the state.

If it were possible to adequately care for this growing army of unfortunates before they reach the point where they become totally helpless the cost of maintaining the eleemosynary institutions of the state would be materially cut. The logical way to do this is to provide sufficient space where these unfortunates could be properly cared for and in addition provide sufficient facilities for the clinical teaching of medicine to young men and women who will in time care for the general health of the people of the state.

To a certain extent this is being done with the present plan, but it is entirely inadequate. At present there are only 150 available. From figures compiled by the officials of the Research hospital it is estimated that 1,000 beds could be filled and that probably then there would still be a number of cases that could not be accommodated. Within the year a few more beds will be available, but even with this addition it will fall far short of the pressing need.

IMPROVE MEDICAL TEACHING

Methods Overtaken in Past Decade—Future Doctors Are Better Equipped.

Perhaps in no university groups have the changes of the recent decades been more sweeping than in the medical colleges of the country, of which the University of Illinois College of Medicine is a brilliant example.

Twenty years ago they represented little more than halls where immense groups of poorly prepared students sat through hours of weary lectures—where actual demonstrations were scanty and laboratories nonexistent—where quizzes prepared the student to answer stereotyped questions in a parrotlike fashion. Today groups of industrious clinicians and investigators demonstrate patients with the common diseases, carefully studying patients with more rare conditions, instructing students at the bedside, taking them into the laboratories, working with them in the out-patient department. Twenty years ago the medical student prided himself on his rowdiness. Today he is a hard-working well-prepared young man with high ideals, eager to advance his profession.

Of course, the professional work is harder. There is more work for the instructor, and much more is demanded of the student. Only the best equipped mentally should today seek a medical career. The state has no money to waste on dullards, the teachers no time to waste on slackers.

Rations for Fighters

During the World war the German soldiers were supplied with tea and coffee without milk. Small rations of rum and arrack were furnished to troops in field and camp. These rations were given out in the evening to be mixed with the tea. Fifteen to twenty men received one bottle. In times of great physical exertion, the allowance of sugar was increased.

Referendum Before War

The Smithsonian Institution says that the holding of a referendum on war was the accepted method among organized Indian tribes like the Iroquoian and Muskogean tribes. This was mentioned by Lafitau in his writings published in 1724.

Paine's Claim to Fame

Thomas Paine was born in 1737 and died in 1809. Of his work called "Common Sense" it is said that it was "the first open assertion of American independence, and was probably the most powerful pamphlet ever influenced a nation's history." In this sense "Common Sense" may be said to have influenced the preparation and adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

The idea of a morning service during the rest of the spring and the summer months has become so popular that we have decided to see if the time will better meet our various needs for a worship and preaching service during the months of good weather. Accordingly, beginning next Sunday morning, May 6th, and continuing throughout the month of May as a test period, the Sunday Worship service will be held from 9:15 A. M. until 10:15 A. M. Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., Sends First Message From Liberia To Rubber Company's Own Station In Akron—Daily Reports On Rubber Growth To Follow

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., now in the African jungles, today broadcasted the first message sent from the special radio station recently erected on the Firestone rubber plantation in the interior of Liberia, on the West Coast of Africa. The message was received at a similar station on the roof of the Firestone factories at Akron, Ohio.

This marks a new era of communication with the interior of inaccessible countries. Heretofore, the method used was to send foot messengers through jungle trails, taking days to get in touch with the outside world. Broadcasting by radio direct from one continent to another thus gives the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. a great advantage in developing its million acres of rubber lands that were secured from the Liberian government. Although these properties are located over 5,000 miles from the Firestone headquarters at Akron, Ohio, it will now be possible to send reports every day by radio from the Liberian plantations to Akron.

100,000 Acres Laid Out

Mr. Firestone, Jr., has been in Liberia since early January. In his first report by radio today, he said that the Liberian government officials were enthusiastically cooperating with Firestone in the company's great undertaking to make Liberia one of the important rubber-growing countries of the world. Mr. Firestone said that during the first year two 50,000-acre plantations had been laid out, one on the Du river and the other 150 miles south of the Du on the Cavalla river.

Firestone engineers in the same time had constructed over 75 miles of roads and had built and established headquarters on the two plantations, with housing facilities for the resident staffs of 118 Americans. Power plants for the development of electric power, light and refrigeration had been built, as well as hospitals and trade stores for the benefit of the Americans and also to supply the needs of the 15,000 natives who are employed in clearing the jungles and planting rubber trees.

1,500,000 Trees Planted

During the past year, according to Mr. Firestone's first radio report, over 1,500,000 rubber trees have been planted on a total of over 15,000 acres of cleared jungle lands. This is a record in rubber plantation work. It is the largest number of trees set out and acres planted by any single company in the same length of time. And Mr. Firestone stated that the rate of progress in clearing land and planting rubber trees is being constantly increased.

Mr. Firestone reported that the steamship sent over for service had been placed in commission along the Liberian coast and is now linking up the Firestone plantations and the coast towns of Liberia. He expressed the hope that Firestone will soon have its own vessels operating directly between New York and Liberia, making the Atlantic passage in less than two weeks. When this is done, it will not only give Firestone an advantage of from two to five weeks in time as compared with other rubber-growing countries, but will also greatly reduce the cost of transportation.

Teach Natives Trades

Great progress in the development of the Firestone trade schools was also reported. Mr. Firestone said that the natives were very anxious to learn under the instruction of the Firestone technical staff. The dark-skinned Liberians are being taught to be carpenters, blacksmiths, plumbers, electricians, automobile mechanics, sanitary engineers, soil experts and foresters. Now that the Liberians, for the first time in the history of the country, have a system of good roads, they are suddenly becoming enthusiastic about motor transportation, and they all want to ride in automobiles, trucks or tractors. As a result, Monrovia, the capital of Liberia, has established a traffic squad to police the traffic on its principal streets. When the Firestone company went into Liberia, there were no roads in the country, and only one automobile. This was owned by the President of Liberia, who had very little occasion to use it because of the absence of good roads.

When Mr. Firestone arrived at the Du river plantation, he was greeted as the "Great White Chief" by many thousands of Firestone native employees who had erected a great arch of leaves and ferns at the entrance of the property and lined the road on both sides as he drove through eleven miles of the plantation to headquarters.

$5,000,000 Loan to Liberia

Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Sr., has successfully arranged a $5,000,000 loan in America for the Liberian government. This places Liberia on a firm financial basis, and permits the development of roads, schools and public buildings. The 118 Americans comprising the Firestone technical staff are helping to organize the 2,000,000 or more native Liberians and give them remunerative employment which had not been hitherto available in their own country. The natives are proving very adaptable and willing to work in an organized way. This has made possible the clearing and planting of such a large acreage during the past year and has undoubtedly had a very appreciable effect in the recent reduction in the price of crude rubber.

European newspapers have carried many articles deriding Firestone for going into Africa to plant rubber. They claimed the soil was poor for rubber growing and that the natives would not work. The British government now realizes that Firestone's Liberian enterprise is anything but a folly. It is conceded by everybody that Firestone has made the greatest rubber development ever accomplished by any single company in the same length of time. Liberia confronts the British and Dutch rubber growers as an increasingly important competitor. And now the British Parliament is seriously considering the question of abandoning or at least modifying the rubber restriction policy.

The British colonies in the Middle East have vigorously expressed themselves along this line. Ceylon has voted to abandon rubber restriction entirely. In Singapore, Straits Settlements, 47 out of 72 rubber growers have voted to abandon rubber restriction or to modify it so it would not be effective. When Premier Baldwin brought up the question of modifying rubber restriction in the British Parliament, rubber was selling around 42 cents a pound. Within a few weeks it dropped about 18 cents a pound. Since a variation of 1 cent a pound means a difference of over $8,000,000 a year to American rubber buyers, the decline from 42 to 24 cents a pound will mean a saving of $150,000,000 a year to America if the present price is maintained.

McCarthy's Flops Set New Record

The McCarthy Flops, as the free lodgings at the Morning Star Mission are known, closed for the season. It being the 14th season as announced by Supt. Peter H. McCarthy head and founder of the Institution. His report is as follows:

The Lodging opened Nov. 17 and between that date and the night it closed 3473 men and boys found shelter and breakfast. A comparison of records show that 503 more men were accommodated this season at the Mission lodging than last year. Lodgings are free.

These Lodgings are known and favorably known from one end of the Country to the other, the reason for this is for there is no charge made for the accommodations offered.

The only pay that Supt. McCarthy asks is that the lodgers listen to the gospel services that are held each night. The Flops are open now that the Lodgings are closed. Supt. McCarthy will discontinue the night ly services but will conduct services each Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday night and Sunday afternoon.

In addition to furnishing lodgings Supt. McCarthy has given out 8249 free meals, supplied 782 persons with clothing and paid railroad fare for 50 needy persons. Transients and one dog. In the 14 years the Flops have been in operation Mission records show 30,071 men and boys found shelter. The largest season for the Lodging was 1914 when 4768 lodgers were registered, the smallest year was in 1919 when only 435 asked for shelter. Included in the list of this season's lodgers were old men, middle aged men, boys 14 and we gave relief to many couples.

Buck Paid Board Bill

With Set of Antlers

Superintendent J. R. Eakin of Glacier National park is authority for one of the most striking instances of wild animal gratitude recorded in natural history. He relates:

"A buck deer with especially fine antlers has been a great favorite at headquarters this winter, and several people expressed a desire for his horns when they were shed, which invariably happens around January.

"One morning while feeding this buck on her back porch, a woman residing at administrative headquarters was astonished to see him rub his horns on the wall until they fell to the floor. As she fed him more often than any other person, she believes it was his way of showing gratitude."

"Men of the Trees"

An organization started six years ago by an Englishman among African tribesmen in the highlands of Kenya, with the object of encouraging the natives to replant denuded areas, has extended the scope of its operation and is now seeking to educate public opinion throughout the British empire in forestry and to instill love of trees into all sections of the community. To this organization has been given the appropriate title of "The Men of the Trees."

EARLY VEGETABLES

Now that the spring is here, we are looking forward to more of the green foods and crisp, fresh vegetables from our gardens; these will take the place to some extent of the fresh fruits such as oranges and grapefruit which have been plentiful during the winter.

There are always apples, late into the spring, and such dried fruits as prunes, apricots, dates, figs and raisins which may be added to the menu occasionally.

Fresh rhubarb is excellent for a spring fruit as well as a tonic. Use it freely as soon as the first shoots appear.

Apricot Shortcake.—Soak half a pound of dried apricots in water to cover and cook in a double boiler till tender. If the fruit is large cut into pieces. Make six slices of very soft French toast, using a pint of milk, an egg and a pinch of salt. Brown the slices delicately on both sides, in butter. Put together in sandwich or shortcake style with the stewed fruit.

Corn Puffs.—Put one can of corn through the meat chopper—or better use the cream of the kernels. To one pint add the beaten yolks of two eggs, one cupful of cracker crumbs, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one teaspoonful of salt, a dash of sugar, and finally the well-beaten whites of the eggs. Add one-fourth cupful of rich milk, unless the corn is very moist. Bake by spoonfuls on a well greased griddle.

Chicken Scramble.—To one solid cupful of chopped chicken from a stew or roast add one cupful of rich chicken stock made by simmering the bones in enough water to cover. Add a little chopped onion, such seasonings as are needed, and four tablespoonfuls of corn meal, adding any left over gravy and bits of stuffing. Cook well, pour into mold and when cold cut into slices and fry; serve hot.

Foods We Like.

We all enjoy sandwiches and on a brisk cool day there is no food which appeals more strongly to the appetite than a hot, well made sand which.

The average cook who has never given thought to food values will throw out the meat that has lost all its food value. The opposite is true—the meat has lost its extractives which give it the flavor we like, but the food is all there. Adding more seasoning will make the meat appetizing again.

Fried Apple Sandwiches.—Slice brown bread very thin and spread with softened butter. Saute one-quarter inch slices of apple unpeeled, in butter, arrange them on the rounds of buttered bread, sprinkle lightly with sugar and set into the oven for a few moments. Just before serving drop a ball of cream cheese in the center of each apple ring and serve at once.

East Indian Sandwiches.—Cut chicken or turkey (left over) into small pieces, add the same quantity of cooked ham. Make a cupful of rich white sauce, add a teaspoonful of curry powder mixed with a little cold milk, add the chicken with a tablespoonful of grated onion. Shimmer for a few minutes, remove from the heat, season well and add a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Trim slices of bread or crusts, butter lightly and saute until a delicate brown. Put together with the hot chicken mixture. Serve garnished with sprigs of watercress or sliced tomatoes.

Pompano Bake.—This is a dish found in the South. New Orleans serves it plentifully. Select a medium-sized pompano, remove head, fins and tail and split as for planking. Carefully remove the back bone and lay the fish skin-side down in a greased pan and spread with the following forcemeat: To one cupful of crab meat, shrimp or lobster minced fine, add one-half cupful of dry bread crumbs, a teaspoonful each of chopped celery and sweet pepper, one grated onion, salt and pepper and a thick white sauce to bind the mixture. Brush the fish with melted butter and spread with the forcemeat. Cover with buttered paper and add one-half cupful each of milk and water or fish stock in the pan. Bake in a hot oven half an hour; remove the paper the last few minutes to brown the fish. Serve on a hot platter garnished with lemon quarters dipped into minced parsley and a few whole shrimps. Serve with drawn butter sauce. Any seasonable fish may be served in the same manner.

Remember, when you are eating oranges you have the valuable vitamins in all their precious life-giving power, intact. Cooking often destroys them, so we should serve all vitamin foods fresh when possible.

SUIT OF STRIPED TUB SILK; "CLASSY" OUTFIT FOR SUMMER

TO BE frocked just right for the occasion, what an uplifted feeling, what poise this gives. And that is why it is not too early to begin this very moment to plan one's wardrobe for vacation days which are so near at hand. Well, let's see—yes, there will be countless informal country club affairs to attend and one will be wanting to take little excursions here and there and oh! for one or several practical dresses which have the chic of a town frock yet something that will launder to the point of always being refreshingly spick-and-span.

It's here just such a costume in this very picture! It's made of wash silk and it's striped and if there is anything smarter this season than stripes the book of fashion fails to record it.

unless possibly polka dots. Indeed, there is quite a rivalry between dots and stripes and oh yes! there is the new star prints. Have you seen them? Perfect five-pointed stars scattered all over just like polka dots. So as far as wash silks are concerned all fashiondom is daunting the stars and stripes.

And now about this attractive two-piece suit of washable silk here pictured. It is really made of a very unusual silk, for instead of the stripes being printed they are actually woven, the silk threads fast-dyed beforehand.

stripes, their effectiveness is largely due to artful manner of styling. They are manipulated in all sorts of startling ways, horizontally, vertically, diagonally sometimes all three ways for the same garment. We haven't been seeing blazer-striped short jackets for many a season, but they have returned in full force, thus emphasizing the importance of stripes in the field of design.

The separate blouse of striped silk or sheer woolen with the stripes running around and around is one of the outstanding manifestations of the favor for stripes.

Victorious days these for fine cotton weaves! Today they are being accorded as flattering and painstaking a styling as has hitherto been reserved for the more formal silks, satins and velvets.

It is not only in the matter of their fashioning that cottons are scoring high. The materials themselves are that lovely they seem almost "too good to be true." By that we mean that they are that "classy," one would never suspect them as having come from the washgoods section. Their beauty, their texture, their coloring and patterning compare favorably with the most expensive genuine silks and the like.

For this reason dressmakers and couturiers do not hesitate to make them up for the dressiest of wear.

This element of loveliness which has entered into the realm of cotton materials is redounding to the benefit of the woman of moderate means.

With such exquisite materials available at little outlay of money there is no reason why one should not have a host of pretty frocks, without being at all extravagant.

Especially fortunate is the woman who does fine needlework, for most of the Parisian lingerie frocks this season, especially those of voile in plain pastel colorings, are either embroidered or fagoted or smocked to distinction.

Fascinating effects are attained by embroidering the thinnest and sheerest of organdies or voiles with gay woolen yarn: Could anything be prettier in the way of a simple summer frock than the one in the picture? The pattern is of the simplest possible lines—so easy to make, any home dressmaker no matter how unskilled in the art of sewing can put it together.

The seagulls can be sewed up in a jiffy and the sleeves easily put in while the making of the cuffs and collar presents no intricacies. Of course, preliminary to the sewing up of the dress there is the embroidery to be done, but to work with these gay flower colorings is really more "a labor of love" than a tedious task.

Whether one chooses a peach-colored voile or organdie for the making of this dress, or aquamarine blue, or an almond green shade, or perhaps maize or orchid the embroidery should be done in realistic flower colorings. To be sure, if one prefers, a modernistic motif may be substituted for the design of quaint garden posies.

GREATNESS THROUGH SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:33-37; 10:35-45.

GOLDEN TEXT.—For even the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—Doing as Jesus Did.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—The Way to Be Great.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—How to Be Truly Great.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Jesus' Standard of Greatness.

Jesus with His disciples was on His way to Capernaum for the last time. He was soon to leave for Jerusalem where He was to die on the cruel cross for the sins of the world. He sought retirement in order to make clearer to the disciples the meaning of the cross. They were yet unable to understand Him. It was a most pitiable sight to behold the Son of God facing humiliation and death or man's salvation and even the disciples failing to understand the meaning of His suffering.

1. The Disciples Disputing as to Who Should Be the Greatest (Mark 9:33-37).

1. Jesus' searching question (v. 33). His omniscience enabled Him to discern their secret thoughts. The fact that the disciples were wrangling about official position while Jesus was facing humiliation and death shows how completely He was alone in the world.

2. The silent disciples (v. 34). The revelation of the selfishness of their hearts made them ashamed in His presence. The realization that the eye of the omniscient Lord is over us is the sure and only cure for selfish wrangling among Christians.

3. The stinging rebuke (vv. 35-37). (1) "If any man desire to be first the same shall be last of all and servant of all." True greatness expresses itself in being willing to take the last and least place and to be a servant of others.

(2) His teaching illustrated (vv. 36, 37). This He did by an acted parable of placing a little child in their midst. A little child is a symbol of dependence and ignorance. By word and example He showed that true greatness is expressed in willingness to aid the weak, instruct the ignorant, and serve the needy.

11. The Ambitious Request of James and John (Mark 10:35-45).

1. What it was (vv. 35-37). It was for the positions of pre-eminence in the kingdom. Christ had told them of the awful agony of the cross and also of the glory which should follow. While their request reveals pride and selfish ambition yet faith in their Lord and a right desire were not wholly lacking. It was not entirely for their personal glory that they made this request, but because of their personal desire to be with their Lord.

2. Jesus' reply (vv. 38-45).

(1) To James and John (vv. 38-40).

a. Their misconception rebuked. "Ye know not what ye ask."

b. Positions of glory in Christ's kingdom are earned, not obtained through favor or arbitrary assignment. The way to honor is through suffering. The cup which they were to drink was all that was embraced in the agony of the cross. Christ conceded that the positions which they craved were obtainable, but in a different way from what they thought.

The way to places of glory in Christ's kingdom is through lowly, self-forgetful service and suffering.

(2) To the ten disciples (vv. 41-45).

a. Their displeasure (v. 41). The ten disciples were displeased with the request of James and John. Their displeasure was because they were not free from the same selfish ambition; their action was not prompted by righteous indignation.

b. True greatness declared (vv. 42-45). To minister to others is greater than to be ministered unto (v. 43). Among the Gentile nations, greatness was conceded to those who exercised authority over others. This is the world's conception today. Among the followers of Christ a different standard prevails. The standard of Christ's kingdom is to forget self in devoted service to others, even to the giving of one's life. The supreme example to be followed by all is Jesus Christ Himself. His whole life was spent in going about doing good, and on the cross of Calvary He made the supreme sacrifice in providing a ransom for many.

Small Girl Knew All

About Wife of Noah

The kindergarten teacher was telling her group the story of Noah and the ark. Suddenly little Isabel waved her hand wildly.

"I know somethin' else," she announced triumphantly. "Noah's wife could ride a horse!"

The teacher was for the moment completely nonplussed, and couldn't just then remember whether those were prehorse days or not. To gain time, she asked:

"How do you know she could, Isabel?"

"Cause I saw the picture and she was ridin' a white horse. An' I know her name, too."

Again the teacher was not sure whether or not the Bible mentioned Mrs. Noah.

"Well, what was it, Isabel?"

"FIRE"

Fire is something everyone dreads the house and get a light, but how Your home, your keepsakes and per- safe is it? From the standpoint of haps everything you own is reduced safety, no matter how expensive to ashes. Poor electrical wiring is your building or how good it is built, one of the greatest fire hazards, it isn't worth much with poor wiring. Most anyone can run a wire around ing.

PIPE AND BX

Here are some of the methods of wiring buildings for electricity: Rigid Conduit (Pipe) Armored Cable (BX) and knob and tube (open wiring). All of these methods of wiring will give results, but pipe or Bx are far the best. Open wiring should be a thing of the past because in most cases it is unsafe.

There are two kinds of pipe, black and galvanized. We use only galvanized pipe which will give many more years of service. In all our work we endeavor to build for permanence, not just to last a year or two.

Having your buildings wired in pipe or Bx does not necessarily mean that they are wired good or that they are safe.

GOOD WIRING

A good electrical wiring job is many of the homes we have one that is done in either Pipe or done repair work in, have shoddy Bx cable, or a combination of both wiring, that has been done by work- by good electricians that not onlyers that either did not know their know how to do electrical wiring business or else they took the job but are conscientious about their on a price basis and forgot all about work and see that you get the best quality and good workmanship.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

You cannot hire a good workman for cheap pay, neither can you buy high grade material at cheap prices. Your Electrical wiring job should be let on a basis of not how cheap but how good.

You soon forget the price but if you get a poor job it will linger with you.

We aim to do good work at a reasonable price. Give us a trial. An estimate will cost you nothing nor obligate you in any way

TOOLS

A good workman must have good tools to do good work. We have complete electrical equipment that enables us to put in a simple wall plug or string up a line of poles. We are established in business and are responsible contractors. We do not come to your door with a hand-

J. OF I. MILITARY TRAINING EFFICIENT

3,280 U. S. Officers in World War Were State University Men.

Two major generals, four brigadier generals, eleven colonels, twenty-nine lieutenant colonels, one hundred and thirty-two majors, six hundred and twenty-four captains and two thousand and one hundred and ninety first and second lieutenants in the World War were former University of Illinois students, a check of figures has revealed.

A total of 3,280 trained officers for the Army, Navy and Marine Corps was the grand total, for in addition to the 2,992 officers supplied the army, 25 officers were supplied the Marine Corps and 263 to the Navy.

"This is certainly a great record," President David Kinley said in comment. "It is a record of which the nation, state and university should be proud."

"No less important is the fact that the university furnished the armed forces of our nation with 3,070 men in other capacities than that of officers. Their work was no less meritorious than that of the officers and they deserve much credit. This figure does not include 3,137 other men enlisted in the Student Army and Navy Training Corps."

"To my mind, this record of our university stands as a justification of the position we have taken in regard to compulsory military training in the state university. The federal government in 1862 took steps to prevent a recurrence in part at least of the mistakes and disastrous events that occurred in the early part of the Civil War because of the scarcity of trained officers. The Morrill Land Grant Act, which gave our great institution of learning its initial impetus, was a far-seeing instrument and I think that the record of the university justifies the idea that underlies that provision of the Land Grant Act which provides for military training."

"Without the training that the University of Illinois gave the 3,280 officers in the three branches of the national armed forces, this number at least would never have been able to serve their country as they did."

LENGTHEN PHARMACY COURSE

Three Years Required Under Rule to Graduate; Makes Better School.

Three years, instead of two as formerly required, will have been spent in obtaining degrees by those who in June will graduate from the University of Illinois School of Pharmacy, located in Chicago. When the first class under this new ruling is graduated in June it will mark the crest of the efforts of the officials of the school to place it in a position where it cannot be surpassed by any school of similar type in the country, according to its dean, William E. Day.

A yearning for a more concise knowledge of their profession and the need of training their clerks to take some of the work of filling prescriptions off their shoulders, led a number of Chicago druggists to found the Chicago College of Pharmacy, the first west of the Allegheny mountains, which later became the University of Illinois School of Pharmacy. The school was incorporated September 5, 1889, making the fourth school of pharmacy in the United States, the other three being in the East. The first class, consisting of two students, was graduated in 1891. At the present, the school is the only one of its type in the state of Illinois. In June, 1927, 621 students were graduated and the present enrollment is approximately 25 per cent higher than last year.

Dearborn street, said that in Midlothian, although there is a well-water system there, an additional system, presumably to pipe Chicago water, is being pushed.

"Other towns using Chicago water have found it necessary to build costly booster stations to get any kind of pressure."

"So also, although there is no sanitary district connection, sewage pipes are being laid or about to be laid. After all this are to come costly sidewalks and street pavements which property owners have no use for over great areas of property."

Robbins Bros.

Circus Coming to Joliet May 14

The Robbins Bros., 4-Ring Shows are to appear in Joliet on May 14.

It is the world's largest circus giving a street parade. It has been increased to twice its former size, thru augmentation by its purchase of U. S. Circus Corporation properties and the Ponca Bill's Wild West Show. Among the distinctive features are:

Two mammoth pageants, requiring 300 people in its cast of characters; three herds of elephants; a mammoth hippopotamus just imported from Africa; marvelous herd of performing animals; Ponca Bill's Wild West shows; fifty Sioux Indians from off the reservation; fifty cowboys; Buchanan's dancing horses; acrobatic acts; Japanese families recently brought over from Japan; Arabian Tumbler from Teheran; Arabia; forty clowns with the highest salaried clown in the world as producer; trained dogs and ponies; parade of nations which for oriental splendor excels anything produced up to the present time; 200 wild animals; 400 horses; 600 men to man the show; wonders galore; feats without a parallel.

The circus is one of the most successful in the country, having for half a century played principally in the east. It is now making its second western tour and is enlarged to such an extent that it stands in the front rank. It is worth while in every way.

ORLAND PARK

The churches of the southwest suburbs are doing a great deal to bring together the people and help them meet their common problems. It has long been the feeling that the southwest side has been neglected. It has been because of lack of organization. The churches were the first to recognize this fact when four years ago they organized their first co-operative parish. This has grown a great deal in the past three years and an outstanding proof has been the fine training schools and inter-community meetings that have been held.

Sunday night the churches from seven communities gathered together at the Orland M. E. church. There was a 6:30 meeting of the young people for discussion led by Andrew Burton of Chicago. The Lemont choir presented their Easter cantata at the evening service. Refreshments were served and a social period enjoyed after the service.

WORTH

Work will soon begin on the Harlem Avenue Bridge. This will be a great improvement to the village and will bring much traffic down Harlem Avenue.

The work has also been started on the sidewalks in the Dumas subdivision. With three new houses now being built by the Goodfellowship Club the subdivision presents an attractive appearance to prospective buyers this summer.

WOULD PREVENT DISEASE

Keep People Well Rather Than Cure Them After They Become Ill.

The prevention of disease is now receiving greater emphasis than ever before. It would be impossible to enumerate the many factors which have brought this about, but there are some which stand in the foreground.

Our minds are filled with terror as we recall the fearful plague which swept over the world in the form of influenza and its companion, pneumonia. A writer in the London Times states that in less than four months the total number of deaths reached about 6,000,000; in India alone 3,000,000 deaths occurred. It is estimated that the World War in four and one-half years was responsible for 20,000,000 deaths. The same writer estimates that this plague would have taken upward of 80,000,000 lives in the same length of time.

Just as medical science worked away on diphtheria, malaria, typhoid fever, typhus fever, smallpox, yellow fever and bubonic plague until these diseases were controlled or eliminated, so it now realizes that it must do everything within the range of human power to intercept the recurrence of this tidal wave of death.

There is a growing recognition by people generally that efficiency is largely a question of health, and that health conservation, therefore, becomes a matter of public concern. Our greatest statesmen, sociologists, physicians and others have repeatedly voiced this sentiment.

Irving Fisher, one of our greatest living authorities on infant mortality, says that out of 30,000 deaths of infants, 47 per cent, nearly one-half, might have been prevented if the laws of hygiene, as known today, had been observed. He adds that the science of disease prevention, if properly applied, will add 15 years to the average human life. Scientists have not widely erred in assuming that the normal life cycle of man should be not less than 90 to 100 years.

It costs no more to raise a man capable of reaching this age, than it does to grow one who has not the capacity of living to be forty years old. The medical profession has reached a point where it realizes that its work has scarcely begun.

Sanitation and care of the sick and infirm were duties which the practicing physician assumed in the earlier days; but the burden of caring for the sick poor, the insane and the criminal, gradually became so great that community sanatoriums, hospitals, asylums and prisons were established. From these beginnings, there has developed a large number of state and municipal institutions for the care of the poor who are physically or mentally ill.

Meaning of Girl's Names

The name Olive is simply that of the pretty tree of the Mediterranean and other warm countries. Dorothy is a name of Greek origin, and means literally "gift of God." Anna comes from Hebrew and Greek sources, and signifies "grace;" while Mildred is from the Anglo-Saxon, the parent of our own language, and means "mild one."
